“We had our first meeting at Takarjala on Tuesday evening where Naomi Chua conveyed on Hannah’s prayer from 1 Samuel 1 and 2. We were told that it was not only a prayer, but also her thanksgiving to God. Hannah exalted the holiness and the omnipotence of God. In 1 Samuel 2:3, Hannah exalted God as the God of justice. She clearly brought out the need for preparatory work and the application of the law in each individual’s life before justification. In 1 Samuel 2:8, we were shown that before God raises someone, He brings him low. Through Hannah’s prayer, we can learn experimental religion. She wasn’t presumptuous but she was very careful in her prayer. At the response session, many confessed of their strong self-dependency and said that God is pleased with the lowly in heart and it is only Jehovah who can deliver them and that religion must be experimental. We must cry out to God like Hannah for our justification. Eber Jamatia made supplication to God on our behalf after the preaching.” Reported by Shelomi Debbarma, Beraiah Lao and Amaziah Debbarma on behalf of Habakkuk Singh, Esther Yeoh, Naomi Chua and Neariah Debbarma, Morgang, Tripura; 18-22 June, Part 5
